Happy 3.1415926... Day!

Are you scratching your head? Today's date corresponds with the mathematical formula for Pi - the ratio of a circle's circumference to its diameter. Pi is considered a mathematical constant. To learn more about Pi or to plan a celebration later today go to piday.org because I'm not able to tell you much more than what I've already shared.

The gospel passage in worship today includes the most quoted and best known verse in all scripture: "For God so loved the world..." Like Pi, John 3:16 is a constant that we can turn to every day and in every circumstance we might face. God's love for us is constant.

Celebrate Pi Day today by eating a piece of pie. Celebrate God's love every day by showing God's love to others.

Happy 3.1415926... Day!

Blessings,

Edward
